Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 25 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Windy, with the best of the brightness in the north.

Today:
Early rain, drizzle and hill snow tending to fizzle out as it becomes to southern areas. Further north, some sunshine developing. Feeling cold everywhere in a strong and gusty southeasterly wind. More wet weather encroaching into southern areas later. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Tonight:
Outbreaks of rain spreading north through the night, becoming heavier in the early hours and falling as snow over higher ground. Winds easing in the south towards dawn. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Sunday:
Rain and hill snow clearing northeast through Boxing Day morning as winds continue to ease. Remaining rather cloudy in the afternoon with showers moving in from the west. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Drier on Monday with some brightness possible. Somewhat cloudier again on Tuesday before it turns widely wet and windy on Wednesday. Becoming increasingly mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.